Beroun Golf Club

Beroun Golf Club is the first non-public golf course in the Czech Republic. The dynamic par-72 course is 6,087 metres long. It was designed by Canadian architect Les Furber. Les Furber himself used his expertise in designing many golf courses in the United States, Canada, Switzerland and Germany, the 18-hole Varadero Golf in Cuba being one of the most interesting examples of his work. The course terrain is free of treacherous parts "swallowing" golf balls, yet the player can be trapped in any one of its four lakes or 70 bunkers. The ambitiously dimensioned clubhouse is home to a family non-smoking restaurant, a clubroom for adults only, a hotel with seven double rooms and two De Luxe rooms with jacuzzi, wellness centre with two jacuzzi, sauna, massage room, fitness room, an outdoor pool as well as conference rooms. The Executive Club is available for private business talks and exclusive social events.
